D'AGOSTINO

Chris is a 27-year-old indie-folk/alternative rock singer-songwriter from Boston, MA. Chris started his singing doing theater productions in high school and college, and covers classic music with ease. His voice effortlessly fills all corners of the room at every performance, and his pure tone, technical consistency and brilliant range stop people to listen to all he has to give. His comfortingly warm presence makes him very welcome voice in any environment. He wins top praise for his haunting and heavenly vocals that make him a standout in all places he performs.

Chris D'Agostino has a diverse musical appetite, with influences stemming from Jeff Buckley to Chris Cornell to Queen. With his many years of theater experience, combined with his passion for performing, Chris loves being on stage, connecting with his audience and engulfing himself in his vocal expression.

He recently won the singer-songwriter competition at Loretta's Last Call and was the winner of the Boston Sings Fenway Open Mic Competition at Loretta's Last Call which had over 100 participants over a three month period of time. For the winning Prize, Chris will perform at several clubs along Landsdowne Street in Boston's Fenway Park region. Chris also made it to the finals in the Lizard Lounge Open Mic series.

Chris participated in the 2019 All You Got tour, and had an opener performance at the Hampton Beach Seashell Stage. He regularly performs throughout Boston at cafes, hotels and clubs.

In February 2022 Chris released "Don't Mind the Rain, his top streaming song at 50K. The song is a vintage song composed in 1924 by Chester Conn and Ned Miller, and Chris has spun it in his own direction using all unique parts to his voice and creating an arrangement with beautiful instrumentals that support the soothing melody. In June 2019 Chris released his debut single "Grey Horizon". It is a gorgeously composed and textured listen with some real heart, a charmer from start to finish which show's his vocal versatility and talent as a musician. This song captivates the listener with haunting yet powerful vocals. He conveys a strong message of overcoming obstacles with strength and perseverance. His second and third songs, "Social Tremors" and "Feels Like Summer" were released in 2020. Overall Spotify streams are currently 120K.

Chris had a single release event at Loretta's Last Call on 10/16/2020, and is also doing a collaboration with another local artist on a video production. Chris is also still actively involved in musical theater, having recently performed in a new musical in the Boston area called "Special".
